Gilgamesh

Posted on 11 June 2010 by admin

Gilgamesh, a poem belonging to the Babylonian era told by the great Scholars which tell the epic story of Gilgamesh and his companion Enkidu, who embark on a dangerous and exciting quest that incur the displeasure of the gods.

The legendary tale of Gilgamesh lives on in the decor of the fantastic Pan-Asian Restaurant situated in the heart of stables market in Camden. The amazing Gilgamesh certainly has the wow factor, a desired place to dine by many celebrities such as Kelly Rowland, Paris Hilton, Ronnie Wood, The Saturdays and JLS.

The restaurant has many unique features, such as the open kitchen in the main restaurant which allows customers to watch the professional chefs at work preparing your meals, the main dining area also has a retractable roof which folds back on sunny days.

The Menu, inspired by the food halls across Asia, Celebrity Chef Ian Pengelley brings his acclaimed Pan-Asian cuisine to Gilgamesh. A selection of signature dishes with influence from South East Asia, China and Japan that are all encouraged to be shared tapas style (some examples of the food below).

Gilgamesh brings a unique and different way of dining with four distinctively different and individual areas, making it an ideal experience, whether you want to host an event or just dine, drink, dance, or socialise with friends, in fabulously glamorous surroundings. It will surely be an experience to remember.
