It's hardly unusual for a bride-to-be to go on a pre-wedding diet to shape up ahead of their big day.

But Danielle Lloyd seems keener than most.

Just two months after giving birth to her first child, and 38 weeks to go until her big day, she is already picture perfect.

The former glamour model showed off her slimline figure last night as she helped pop star Pixie Lott launch her new designs for Lipsy.

In great shape: Two months after the birth of her first child, Danielle Lloyd squeezed into a Herve Leger bandage dress as she and Jamie O'Hara helped Pixie Lott launch her fashion range in London

Before heading to the bash with fiancé Jamie O'Hara, Danielle got in some designing of her own with a fitting of her wedding gown.

She tweeted: 'Just been for another wedding dress fitting. So excited, can't wait for it to start coming together - its going to fly. Only 38 weeks to go! lol.'

But for Pixie's party she squeezed into something more suitable for partying - a Herve Leger bandage dress.

The tight gown didn't stop her tucking into a Lipsy cupcake at the bash, then stopping for a kebab on the way home.

Three ways with Pixie: The singer modeled her own range for LIPSY - inspired by her rock chick girly style and her favourite style icons past and present

'Nearly home to my son miss him so much stopping for a chicken sheesh on the way bloody starving,' she tweeted.

Other celebrities at the event at Gilgamesh in Camden included Big Brother's Imogen Thomas and Nikki Grahame, Sugababes Jade Ewen, X Factor's Lucie Jones, Strictly's Kristina Rihanoff, MTV presenter Laura Whitmore, and Inbetweeners star Emily Atack.

Pixie herself chose a belted zebra print dress from her new range, which she accessorised with a fake fur jacket and studded shoes.

Black ladies: Sugababe Jade Ewen, Inbetweeners Emily Atack and Big Brother beauty queen Imogen Thomas were amongst the group at Gilgamesh in Camden

Her 25 piece collection, her second for Lipsy, comprises two distinct looks – Pixie Rocks and Pixie Party – inspired by the singer's own rock chick girly style and her favourite style icons past and present.

Pixie Rocks is described as edgy, rock-inspired style with everything from studded leather biker jackets to statement full length black jumpsuits and leather tassel skirts.

And Pixie Party is the 'ultimate party girl wardrobe' with 50s inspired prom dresses, sleek and sophisticated evening dresses with lace detail, satin bows, layering and plunging backs.

Pixie said: 'I'm having such great fun turning my style ideas into an actual fashion range so am really excited to be launching my second collection with Lipsy.'

'This time I've taken inspiration from some of my favourite style icons like Bridget Bardot and Edie Sedgwick and what I love to wear out with my friends.'

The collection officially launches next Tuesday, September 28, and will be available in all Lipsy stores and concessions and online at www.lipsy.co.uk.

MTV Europe presenter Laura Whitmore, Hollyoaks star Helen Russell-Clark, Xtra Factor presenter Konnie Huq

I think it's just the luck of the draw. With both my babies I was back into skinny jeans and tight clothes in less than a week, and that was with no effort at all on my part.

I didn't look like I'd had a baby at all but I think it helped that my 'cravings' during pregnancy were salad rolls with baby number 1, and fish with baby number 2, nothing very fattening, and that I was slim to start with.

I hate exercise and wouldn't have done it and wouldn't have dieted.

If you are a bit rounder after having a baby then there's really no point in beating yourself up about it - it's just how you are. Danielle Lloyd is obviously just one of the lucky ones.
